

MAGNUS Leadership "Turbocharging Trusting Relationships, Wellness and Resiliency in Law Enforcement"

Law Enforcement Leaders are challenged more than ever in leading organizations through the volatility, uncertainty, complexity and ambiguity that exist within the law enforcement profession.

We are honored to have presenting this timely topic as part of our continued leadership focus: Mitch Javidi, Ph.D, Chancellor, National Command & Staff College and Ret. Lt. Col. Wellington R. Scott, Chief Operating Officer, National Command & Staff College.

In this one day training event the following objectives will be met:

- * To understand the importance of creating a working environment that promotes wellness, safety and resiliency.
- * Identify key “Imperatives” that MAGNUS Officers must exhibit in order to deliver results with confidence for themselves, the organization and the community they serve.
- * Have a scientific and practical understanding of cognitive science and positive emotional intelligence for improved officers’ leadership, wellness and safety.
- * How an agency leads through line of duty deaths, crisis events and tragedy.

Where: Wake Technical Public Safety Campus
321 Chapanoke Road, Raleigh N.C. 27603

When: Thursday August 29, 2019- 8:00 AM-5:00 PM

Audience: Chiefs, Executive-Officers, Command Staff, supervisors, and future police leaders

Costs: NCPEA Members: $10.00 NON-Members: $15.00

Register at: www.ncpea.org

For more information contact:

Tom Anderson, Director of Training: training@ncpea.org